THURSDAY, JANUARY 5, 1744.

Genoa, December 17.

WE are still in the utmost Agitation here, on account of the supposed Article, to our Prejudice, in the late Treaty of Worms; of which we have the stronger Apprehension, because, hitherto, we have not been able to get any satisfactory Account about it. We flatter ourselves, however, that we shall be able to escape, at least for the present, since it is certain, that the Confusions in Italy, are so far from drawing to an End, that they are likelier to become greater than ever. His most Christian Majesty is on the Point of sending a strong Fleet, and a numerous Army, into this Part of the World; but where they are to debark, seems to be a Question not easily answered. Some say, at Naples, others at Leghorn; and many think they will be landed on our Territories. This only is clear, and out of Question, that some where or other they will land; of which, as soon as the Neapolitans have Advice, they will infallibly join the Spaniards, and march against the Austrians, in order to put them between two Fires. In the mean time, Don Philip will dispose all Things so as to make an Irruption into Piedmont early in the Spring. What Turn Things will take, in Consequence of these Operations, Time only can discover; but as we think it not at all probable that his Sardinian Majesty should attempt invading our Territories, while his own are in such imminent Danger, we are not much displeased with the Prospect; which would otherwise alarm us, as much as it will do him.

Vienna, December 26. A great Conference was lately held at Court, in relation to the King of Sardinia's Demand, to be put in immediate Possession of the Marquisate of Final. Upon mature Deliberation, it has been resolved to enter into a Negociation with the Republick of Genoa, in order to obtain her Consent to that Article, by Means of some Equivalent; which it is foreseen, will be a Matter of some Difficulty; since the Genoese have of late entertained a Notion, that the King of Sardinia's Views are not confined to Final, but extend also to the Town and Port of Savona; which is, in many Respects, of more Consequence to the Republick. The Negotiations for ransoming the French Troops that are Prisoners in the Queen, our Sovereign's, Dominions, is more seriously carried on than ever; tho' we still very much doubt whether it will be brought to the desired Conclusion. In the mean time, a List has been delivered to the French Commissaries, by which it appears, that they amount to 18,547 Men; but it is not probable that our Court will allow them to be ransomed at once, to prevent their being employed a second time against us, in the Service either of the Emperor, or some other Prince. It was resolved in a Council of State held a few Days ago, that the most serious Remonstrances should be made at London and the Hague, in order to procure Orders for the English and Dutch Auxiliaries to be ready to take the Field by the beginning of March; for, otherwise, it is foreseen, that the French will have the Start of us, and, perhaps, pass the Rhine again with a fresh Army.

Hague, January 7. It appears, very clearly, that France has no longer any serious Thoughts of Peace. Her Designs in Germany have been so baffled, and, on the other hand, the Spaniards have suffer'd so excessively, by the Disappointments they have met with in Italy, that the French Ministers are afraid of losing all their Influence, if they do not exert their utmost Strength, in order to restore their Affairs in the Empire, and to force a Passage for Don Philip into Italy. Our East-India Company, in the mean time, are using their utmost Endeavours, to restore their Affairs in that Part of the World, and to retrieve the great Part of their Trade, which has been lost to the French. According to our last Letters from Amsterdam, the Number of Persons that died there last Year, amounted to 7043; whereas in the Year 1742 there died 7321, and in 1741, 9864.

SCOTLAND.

Edinburgh, Decem. 27. They write from Irvine, that on Thursday, the 15th Instant, four Sailors belonging to that Place, went in a Boat to Air for Herrings, and arriv'd off that Bay the Day after, about Two in the Afternoon; and not having Water, stood towards Saltcoats, till the Tide should make; but by some Misfortune (supposed to have sprung a Leak) they all perished. Three of them are since drove ashore, and the Boat, in which there is a large Hole: The Fourth is not yet found.

The Verdict of the Jury on the Trial of James Macpherson, given in last Tuesday to the High Court of Justiciary, was; We all, with one Voice, find the Panel Guilty of the Crime libelled. Immediately after, Mr. William Their, Chancellor of the Jury, delivered a Letter to the Right Hon. the Lord Justice Clerk, sign'd by himself, and in Name of the other Gentlemen, recommending the Pannel to the Mercy of the Court, as it did not appear, from the Face of the Proof, that he had ever been guilty of any other Crime; and, in case they should be of Opinion, that by the Law they could not dispense with a Capital Punishment, requesting they would be pleas'd to recommend the Pannel to his Majesty's Mercy. Their Lordships, hereupon, superseded passing Sentence till the 6th of January; and recommended to the Lawyers to search Precedents in the mean time. The Bench return'd Thanks to the Gentlemen of the Jury, for their honest and distinct Verdict.

Saturday last, about One in the Afternoon, Robert Hawley, one of the Prisoners indicted before the Lord Provost of this City, for the Crimes of Theft, Housebreaking, &c. hang'd himself in one of his Garters, on a Ring in the Window of the Room wherein he was confin'd, not above three Foot from the Floor. There was one of his Accomplices in the Room with him, but was asleep at the time. His Body was given to the Professors of Anatomy, to be dissected. He was born in the County of Perth, of very honest Parents; but he gave himself up to an idle Life, which, as is commonly the Consequence of Idleness, was the Occasion of all his Misfortunes.
